PREFACE

This volume, the Jamaica Standard Occupational Classification 1991(JSOC-91) replaces the Jamaica Standard Classification of Occupations 1968.

The history of the development of the Jamaica Standard Occupational Classification goes back several decades and has always been closely connected with the work of the International Conference of Labour Statisticians which meets under the auspices of the International Labour Organization. In 1921 the need for an international standard classification of occupations was initially discussed. The first positive step towards its establishment was the adoption of a provisional classification of nine major groups by the Seventh International Conference of Labour Statisticians in 1949.

JSOC-91 has been developed to facilitate international comparisons of occupational statistics.

INTRODUCTION

The revised Jamaica Standard Occupational Classification 1991 provides a system for classifying and aggregating occupational information obtained by means of population censuses and other statistical survey as well as from administrative records.

The Jamaica Standard Occupational Classification-91 (JSOC-91) is a revision of the Jamaica Standard Classification of Occupations 1968 which it supersedes. The thirteenth and fourteenth International Conferences of Labour Statisticians were held at the International Labour Office, Geneva in 1982 and 1987. It was recommended that in collecting and processing statistics classified by occupation, each country should ensure the possibility of conversion into the International Standard Classification of Occupations-88 system to facilitate inter-national use of occupational information.

MAIN OBJECTIVES

The Jamaica Standard Occupational Classification-91 (JSOC-91) has two main aims. The first is to facilitate international communication about occupations by supplying national statisticians with a tool to make national occupational data available internationally.

The second is to make it possible for international occupational data to be produced in a form which can be useful for research as well as for specific decision making and action oriented activities such as those connected with international migration or job placement.

SUMMARY OF MAJOR GROUPS

The following briefly outlines JSOC-91 major groups and is meant to facilitate the interpretation of the classification.

1. LEGISLATORS, SENIOR OFFICIALS AND MANAGERS

This major group includes occupations whose main tasks consist of determining and formulating government policies as well as laws and public regulations, over seeing their implementation, representing governments and acting on their behalf or planning, directing and coordinating the policies and activities of enterprises and organizations or departments.

2. PROFESSIONALS

This major group includes occupations whose main tasks require a high level of professional knowledge and experience in the fields of physical and life sciences or social sciences and humanities. The main tasks consist of increasing the existing stock of knowledge, applying scientific and artistic concepts and theories to the solution of problems. There has been a further sub-division of this major group into four sub-major groups.

3. TECHNICIANS AND ASSOCIATE PROFESSIONALS

This major group includes occupations whose main tasks require technical knowledge and experience in one or more fields of physical and life sciences, or social sciences and humanities. The main tasks consist of carrying out technical work connected with the application of concepts and operational methods in the above mentioned fields and in teaching at certain education levels.

4. CLERKS

This major group includes occupations whose main tasks require knowledge and experience necessary to organize, store, compute and retrieve information. The main tasks consist of performing secretarial duties, operating word processors and other office machines, recording and computing numerical data and performing a number of customer-oriented clerical duties, mostly in connection with mail services, money handling operations and appointments.

5. SERVICE WORKERS AND SHOP AND MARKET SALES WORKERS

This major group includes occupations whose main tasks require the knowledge and experience necessary to provide personal and protective services and to sell goods in shops or at markets. The main tasks consist of providing services related to travel, housekeeping, catering, personal care, protection of individuals and property and to maintaining law and order or selling goods in shops or at markets.

6. SKILLED AGRICULTURAL AND FISHERY WORKERS

This major group includes occupations whose task require the knowledge and experience necessary to produce farm, forestry and fishery products. The main tasks consist of growing crops, breeding or hunting animals catching or cultivating fish, conserving and exploiting forests and especially in the case of market-oriented agricultural and fishery workers, selling products to purchasers, marketing organizations or at markets .

7. CRAFT AND RELATED TRADES WORKERS

This major group includes occupations whose tasks require the knowledge and experience of skilled trades or handicrafts which among other things involves an understanding of materials and tools to be used, as well as of all stages of the production process including the characteristics and the intended use of the final product. The main tasks consist of extracting raw materials, constructing buildings and other structures and making various products as well as handicraft goods.

8. PLANT AND MACHINE OPERATORS AND ASSEMBLERS

This major group includes occupations whose main tasks require the knowledge and experience necessary to operate and monitor large scale and often highly automated, industrial machinery and equipment. The main tasks consist of operating and monitoring mining, processing and production machinery and equipment as well as driving vehicles and driving and operating mobile plant or assembling products from component parts.

9. ELEMENTARY OCCUPATIONS

This major group covers occupations which require the knowledge and experience necessary to perform mostly simple and routine tasks, involving the use of hand held tools and in some cases considerable physical effort and with few exceptions, only limited personal initiative or judgement. The main tasks consist of selling goods in streets, doorkeeping and property watching as well as cleaning, washing, pressing and working as labourers in the fields of mining, agriculture and fishing, construction and manufacturing.

10. ARMED FORCES

Members of the armed forces are those personnel who are currently serving in the armed forces, including auxiliary services whether on a voluntary or compulsory basis and who are not free to accept civilian employment. Included are regular members of the army, navy, air force and other military services as well as conscripts enrolled for military training or other service for a specified period, depending on national requirements. Excluded are persons in civilian employment of government establishments concerned with defence issues, police, customs inspectors, persons who have been temporarily withdrawn from civilian life for a short period of military training or retraining, according to national requirements and members of military reserves not currently on active service.

NOTES ON SOME PARTICULAR OCCUPATIONS

Technical Occupations are classified separately from professional occupations in Major group 3, Technicians and Associate Professionals. Thus, Technician, biology is classified in Unit group 3211, Life Science Technicians, while Technician, engineering/mining is classified in Unit group 3117, Mining and Metallurgical Technicians.

Quality Inspecting Occupations whose main tasks are to ensure compliance with the quality standards and specification of manufacturers are classified in Unit group 3152, Safety, Health and Quality Inspectors. On the other hand, testers and checkers, whose main tasks consist of a mechanical inspection of the goods produced which in most cases amounts to simple visual checking, are classified with workers producing these goods.

Supervising Occupations, as well as those of a foreman/woman which are mainly concerned with the control of the professional or technical quality of the work done are classified together with the jobs whose tasks they supervise. However if the main tasks and duties of a job consist of planning, organizing, controlling and directing the daily work activities of a group of subordinate workers, the occupation should be considered as a managerial occupation. It should be classified in the appropriate group belonging either to Sub-major group 12 or 13, Corporate Managers or General Managers respectively.

Coaching Occupations primarily concerned with on the job training by continuous observation, assessment and guidance are classified with the occupations whose workers they instruct in particular, trade, craft or machine-operating tasks.

Teaching occupations mainly concerned with giving private lessons are classified with other teachers at the corresponding institutional level. It should be noted that driving, flying, sailing and related instructors are classified in Unit group 3341 .

Occupations concerned with research and development are classified according to the field of specialization Major group 2, Professionals. When a researcher is also exercising a teaching profession he or she should be classified as a teacher at the appropriate educational level.

Apprentices and trainees are classified according to the tasks and duties actually performed and not according to their future occupation.
